Gales Lash North Sea, Europeans Count 108 Dead

By DENNIS NEED

LONDON (AP)—Winter gales in the North Sea overturned a Norwegian freighter today and killed 20 crewmen. The storm, raging for the fifth day in the Atlantic and along the coasts of Europe, has taken a toll of 108 dead or missing.

The 1,719-ton Elfrida was found floating bottom up off the southern coast of Norway after she ran aground for help. Her last call for help said the crew was talking to lifeboats.

The Oslo motorship Buffalo found two overturned lifeboats and six bodies. The Norwegian liner Oslofjord found a lifeboat still with no one aboard. Amateur radio operators said they heard another ship reporting 19 bodies found.

The Norwegian Air-Sea Rescue Service said, however, it had three planes still searching for another lifeboat.

Off the Scottish coast, seven crew members of the North Carr lightship were rescued by Royal Air Force helicopters.

An entire lifeboat crew of eight drowned Monday night in an effort to reach the drifting lightship, and a tug and highhouse tender were unable to take her in tow.

Norway's radio frequencies were jammed with distress calls and rescue operations from all over the North Sea.

The wreck of the little German freighter Merkur, 995 tons, was found 100 miles off the rugged Norwegian coast not far from where the Elfrida turned over.

The Swedish ship Vasaholm and a British trawler reported there was no sign of Merkur's seven-man crew.

The 700-ton Norwegian freighter Grete Selheim, with nine men on her, also was overdue at Alesund, Norway, and was presumed lost.

The Norwegian salvage ship Slavator was standing by the German freighter Escherberg about 100 miles off Stavanger. The Escherberg reported she had lost her rudder.

The Norwegian trawler Ertan of Kristiansund, with 14 men aboard, reported she was in trouble off Lerwick, in the Shetlands, after drifting for four days.

The Isle of Oland was cut off from the Swedish mainland by a blizzard and food was reported running low.

Hundreds in Search for Armed Convict

By REESE HART

IVY BLUFF, N.C. (AP)—Hundreds of officers, using planes and bloodhounds, conducted a massive manhunt today for 19 heavily armed and dangerous convicts still at large from Tuesday's break from North Carolina's toughest prison here. One convict was recaptured.

Two helicopters from Ft. Bragg joined the hunt today, the FBI announced. Several private planes also are being used in efforts to spot any of the convicts still in this area.

The fact that only a few cars were reported stolen in this section led officers to believe at least some of the escapees are still hiding not far from this prison site close to the Virginia line.

Four men, one of whom identified himself with the escape here, broke into a home in Memphis, Tenn., and raped a woman. They tied up the woman's husband and while one stood guard with a knife, three raped her.

"I'm one of the 20," one of the men declared in what police said was an obvious reference to the break here.

Russians Again Need Medical Aid

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—For the second time in nine months, a Russian seaman was in need of U.S. medical help today in the stormy Bering Sea. For the second time, help was on its way from the U.S. Coast Guard.

The Soviet refrigerator ship Jana radiated Tuesday that a member of its crew was seriously ill. The Coast Guard flew a plane with a doctor aboard from Kodiak to Cold Bay, 400 miles west of here in the Aleutians, to pick up the unidentified seaman and fly him to Kodiak Naval Hospital.

The Jana is a member of the Soviet fishing fleet in the Bering Sea. Last April the mother ship of the fleet the frozen Pischevaya Industriya, appeared for help when a seaman fell overboard.

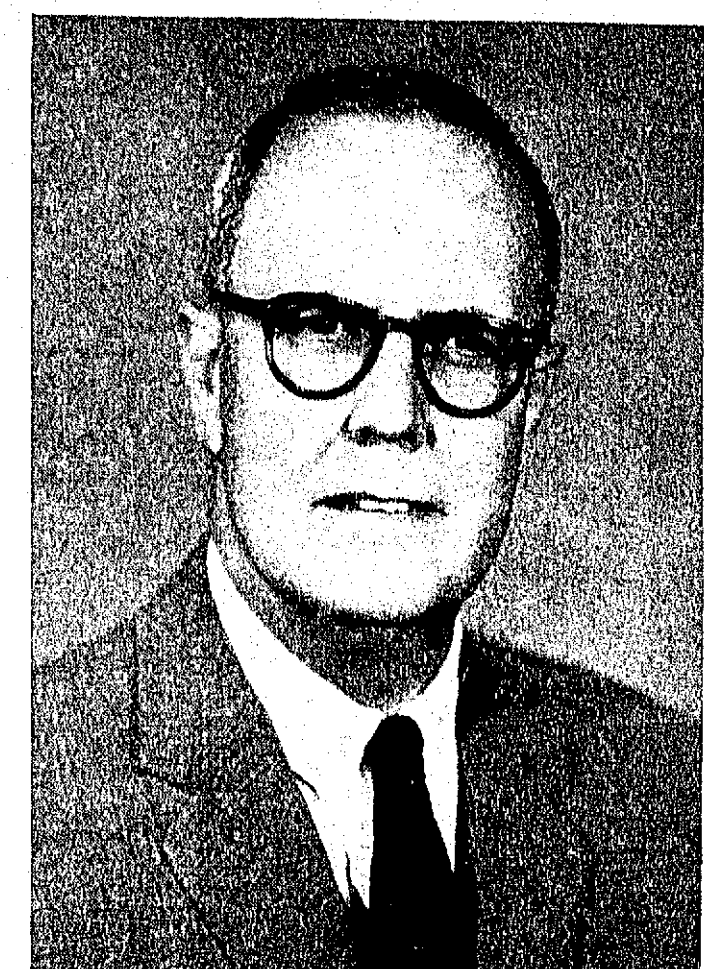

The seaman was near death with pneumonia. The Coast Guard flew him to Elmendorf Air Force Base in Anchorage, where he is covered. The Soviet government thanked the United States officially last month.

India's Masses Provide Awesome Welcome for President Eisenhower

Kiwanians to Hear Editor

Over a Million Hail 'Messenger of World Peace'

By WATSON SIMS

J. Q. Mahaffey, principal speaker for the occasion, will be John Quincy Mahaffey, editor of the Toxarkana Gazette and Daily News.

NEW DELHI (AP)—A joyously hysterical throng of more than one million—sometimes terrifyingly out of control—surged about President Eisenhower tonight as he rode for miles through this capital of India.

Proclaimed in a huge banner as "the prince of peace," the President was caught light in an awesome crush of screaming, almost weeping humanity.

No one will ever know exactly how many Indians stood to cheer Eisenhower along an 11-mile route from airport to city. Police guessed the crowd at 1 1/2 million, but it could easily have been larger.

Many even the poor illiterates who make up much of this nation's population must have shared a widespread feeling that Eisenhower's presence at this time was a clear warning to Communist China against further action on the India frontier.

Prime Minister Nehru, welcoming Eisenhower from a triumphant six-hour stopover in Afghanistan, declared that friendship for America had been firmly established in India before his arrival. He said Eisenhower's visit would make this friendship ever stronger, more durable and lasting.

"We are grateful to you and to your country for this visit," Nehru declared, his voice filled with emotion.

Eisenhower responded with a pledge that American leaders will stand beside India's leaders in the quest for world peace.

"The Lord willing, that quest will be successful," Eisenhower said. "All of us know the only alternative to global war is peace. Let us pray that even this little step forward may have some useful purpose in furthering this great cause."

Eisenhower came to India, fifth stop on his mission to three continents, from another tumultuous reception in the mountain kingdom of Afghanistan. Crowds estimated at half a million so delayed his progress in Kabul that he was half an hour late reaching New Delhi.

The President rode into New Delhi from the airport in an open convertible, smiling and waving. The crowds, jammed hundreds deep, sometimes pressed so close there was barely room for the presidential car to pass. Police were forced to beat back excited Indians at the airport with lathis, lather-padded sticks.

The Indians had come by bus, car, train, and on foot to the roadside route, accompanied by Nehru's words to welcome the first U. S. chief executive to visit India as a messenger of peace.

Indian radio announcers, describing the vast outpouring of the people, called this "a red-letter day in Indian history." They said the welcome was the biggest ever given a foreign visitor.

A brilliant sun shone in a blue sky with only an occasional wispy cloud. The temperature was 60 degrees.

Eisenhower and Nehru stood in the car as it passed through New Delhi's streets. The 75-year-old President of India, Rajendra Prasad, remained seated.

Nehru, welcoming Eisenhower at the airport, told him that his five-day visit should convince him that India is really engaged in striving for peace.

A crowd of some 20,000 at the airport grounds let loose their after-noon of applause, drowning out their remarks.

Flashing his famous grin, Eisenhower told the airport greeters his arrival in India fulfilled a fervent wish.

After Nehru visited him in Washington in 1956, he said, "I made up my mind, the Lord willing, I would come to India while I was president of the United States."

Eisenhower was half an hour behind schedule, delayed by a hectic welcome from following, appropriate, cheering crowds a few hours earlier during a stop of nearly six hours in Kodaik, the

One Holdup Man Found Insane

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—U.S. District Judge J. Smith Henley says Lee Chadwick, one of four men accused in the holdup of the Bank of Weiner last February, is insane and has ordered him committed to a mental institution.

The 36-year-old Chadwick, who lived at Ottwell, was taken to a federal hospital at Springfield, Mo., after his arrest soon after the $22,000 robbery. He was found mentally unfit to stand trial on charges of participating in the holdup.

Chadwick's trial was due to come up in the current term of federal court here. Henley ordered another examination for him before the trial date and the hospital advised that Chadwick is insane.

Henley said Chadwick could be tried later if his mental condition improves. Chadwick will remain in jail at Jonesboro until authorities determine where to commit him.

The other three men involved in the holdup are serving prison terms. Joe Mullens, 25, is in a federal penitentiary, and Johnny Mullens, 17, and James Hank, 19, are in a federal reformatory. All but $3,647 of the stolen money was recovered.

Highway Bids Will Total 1 1/2 Million

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Highway Commission meets today to open bids on 13 road and bridge projects costing about 1 1/2 million dollars and to consider a system of programming road work two years in advance.

The long range planning proposal was announced earlier this week by Highway Director P. R. Oliver.

If the plan is approved, the commission would program about 45 million dollars worth of road construction next month in addition to the $36,250,000 already programmed.

This would give the department enough projects to last for two years.

The contracts up for bids are relatively small ones. Signing may be delayed pending determination of the amount of federal funds available for highway work in Arkansas.

Oliver said the programming proposal would list areas in which the Highway Department feels road work is most critically needed. He declined to make public the priority lists, saying he wanted the commission to see them first.

The long range planning would distribute work more equitably over the state and permit those interested in highway work to know well in advance what the department plans.

Reports Link Cancer to Cigarette Smoke

NEW YORK (AP)—Two new scientific reports say cigarette smoke and its pollutants in smog may contribute to development of lung cancer by interfering with the body's natural defense structures in the respiratory tract.

The reports, issued by scientists at the University of Southern California, School of Medicine, appeared in the November edition of The Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

The reports said natural and artificial sources of the common pollutants in smog from both internal and external sources affect the respiratory tract.

The scientists said that the pollutants in smog may be more harmful than cigarette smoke because they are in a more active state when they enter the lungs.

They said that the flow of the natural defense mechanism of the lungs is changed by the pollutants in smog, and that this change may lead to the development of cancer.

Normal functioning of the lungs and the prevention of accumulation of pollutants in the lining of the respiratory tract are essential for the health of the lungs. The scientists said that the pollutants in smog may be more harmful than cigarette smoke because they are in a more active state when they enter the lungs.

Commissioner Thinks State Tax Take From People Will Be $200 Million by 1975

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—State revenues totaling 200 million dollars annually by 1975? This is a prediction Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney has been advancing in speeches over the state.

"And I sincerely believe it," Cheney said today. "History most emphatically supports that prediction."

Cheney points out that revenues 10 years ago totaled 78 million dollars. Last year the figure was 142 million, this year, he estimates, total collections will total 159 million.

"And the tax increases of 1957 contributed only a small amount to the increased total," Cheney said. "Most of the added revenue came as a result of a generally advanced economic structure and inflation. Most of the increased forecast will result from the same causes."

But if revenues are going to rise at such a rapid rate, why not a tax cut?

"The demand for additional state services is increasing as rapidly or more rapidly than revenues," Cheney said. "And the people do not really mind paying for services they want."

Overwhelming endorsement of the three per cent sales tax in the 1955 general election was an example of taxpayers willing to assess themselves for needed services, Cheney said.

The commissioner said he expects a tremendous increase in the demand for educational facilities, particularly colleges, in the next 15 years.

He listed a rebuilding program at the State Hospital, expansion of the Cadiz-Coleman College, and financing of the University Medical Center at Little Rock among the most pressing demands on state funds.

A tax increase, he said, would not only provide the money to pay for these needs, but also would provide a "goose" to pay for the tax.

"I'll go on record in favor of it," Cheney said. "If you're going to get the most out of life, you don't mind paying for it."

When the Arkansas Supreme Court refused to hear a case against the three per cent sales tax, Cheney said, "I was glad to see it. It was a good thing for the state."

Guests of the day were Hope, Arkansas, and Springfield, Arkansas. Charles Nelson, H. M. O'Brien was the court clerk. P. L. Cuthbert introduced as a new member.

Leggett Loses Another Try to Save Life

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Another effort to save Emmett Earl Leggett from the electric chair will be made in Pulaski Circuit Court today.

Kenneth Coffelt, attorney for the 22-year-old convicted slayer, will present a motion to bring Leggett to trial on two rape charges.

If Judge William J. Kirby grants the motion, Coffelt could raise a sanity issue. The attorney insists that Leggett, sentenced to die for the strangulation of a 14-year-old boy, is insane. A finding of insanity in the rape case would give Coffelt another chance to try and prove his client was not legally responsible for the killing and thus should not be executed.

Leggett was convicted in the Dec. 23, 1955 slaying of Joe King of Jacksonville. He has been given 11 reprieves.

The Arkansas Supreme Court last month refused to order a new trial for Leggett on the basis of alleged new evidence—a report by psychiatrists from the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan. The Menninger doctors say Leggett is insane but the Arkansas Supreme Court ruled otherwise.

Coffelt said last night that if he wins a new sanity hearing, he will ask that Leggett be committed to a mental hospital in the meantime.

"I don't think there is any question that the boy is insane," Coffelt said. "I think the public generally believes that. And there is no question in my mind as to what a sane verdict would be."

The case is being heard against Leggett because of attacking two police officers in 1954 near Jacksonville. He was later charged with the slaying of Joe King.

All Around Town

By The Star Staff

Frank X. Tolbert's column in the Dallas News recently devoted an article to Eric Deane's inquiry about "evidence that Sam Houston spent some time at a tavern in the frontier town of Washington, Ark., plotting the Texas Revolution?"

Mr. Tolbert, "Dr. Walter Scott McNutt of Jefferson, Texas, has done the most research on this matter that the Arkansas tavern was once Houston's headquarters, and the doctor, an Arkansas native, says that he got all his information from the stories of older people around Hope, Ark."

Dr. McNutt says that the Old Washington tavern was a "rumbling station" for the Texas rebel army, and the Jefferson authority believes that Houston stayed the night there in 1835.

McNutt has spent years trying to get the tavern restored.

Afghanistan Told of U. S. Friendship

By JOHN SCALI

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP)—President Eisenhower told the Afghans today "true friendship and mutual responsibility" have become essential among nations.

The President paid a visit of nearly six hours to this mountainous neutral kingdom, which is under mounting Soviet influence, on his way from a triumphal visit in Pakistan, a U.S. ally, to India, the keystone of his 11-nation goodwill tour.

King Mohammed Zahir greeted Eisenhower warmly in near-freezing weather at the Soviet built airport of this mile-high capital. There were cheers and applause.

Eisenhower, bearded in a black overcoat and muffler, smiled broadly as he shook hands with the King and other Afghan officials against the backdrop of the snow-capped Hindu Kush mountains.

An honor guard of the Afghan army snapped to attention. The airport was decorated with Afghan and U.S. flags and the royal standard.

Thousands of Afghans in long robes, shawls and turbans lined the road at villages in the bleak, barren countryside during the 30-mile drive into Kabul, cheering and applauding.

The schedule packed in discussions between Eisenhower and King Zahir at Chilkot Palace, a luncheon given by the King and farewell ceremonies at the deshy national parade grounds.

This nation of 12 million, on the southern rim of the Soviet Union, is the fourth Eisenhower has visited on the tour he launched Dec. 3. It was the first monarchy on the itinerary.

Originator of Quiz Show Quits Network

NEW YORK (AP)—Louis G. Cowan, who originated the now-discredited quiz show "The $64,000 Question," has resigned in anger as president of the Columbia Broadcasting System television network.

He charged Tuesday that Frank Stanton, president of the entire CBS operation, had forced him out using health as an excuse because of his early connection with the show, despite the fact that his personal integrity had not been questioned.

Stanton "made it impossible for me to continue," Cowan declared. His letter of resignation accused Stanton of publicly and privately expressing confidence in his integrity while urging the resignation and asking him not to communicate with his office.

Cowan charged that Stanton refused to approve any resignation announcement except one giving poor health as the reason. Cowan refused to go along with this.

In reply to Cowan's statement, Stanton said: "It shocks me that you should attribute to me motives that have no basis in fact whatsoever."

Cowan was affiliated with the "Question" for its first seven weeks in 1955. Recent testimony before a congressional subcommittee disclosed that the show and other big-money quiz programs were manipulated to fix winners in advance.

Because of his illness Cowan did not appear as a witness but other testimony bore out his statement that he "Question" was honest.

DOROTHY DIX

That Which He Fears Will Come Upon Him

Dear Dorothy Dix:
Six weeks ago I met a very nice girl who lives in another state. I have dated her about six times. On our last date she told me she loved me. She is just 18. I am 21. I don't want to lose her. I drive 50 miles to see her and give her anything she wants. Do you think she will stick with me? — FS.
Dear FS.: Apparently you are fearful of losing your girl since your questions clearly imply lack of self-confidence. Throw out your chest, hold up your head and take charge. Be manly. Respect your girl. No girl wants a softy. If you are right to be in a giving mood, especially at this season of the year, but don't overdo the Santa Claus role. To give your girl everything she wants is tempting fate. If you're too much of an easy-mark, she'll walk out. She has you guessing, which means she instinctively understands how to play the game of love. Don't be a push-over! Try the same tactics on her.
Dear Dorothy Dix:
I have been going with a fellow for a year. I can't fully trust him and I'm such a jealous person I am afraid this will interfere with our friendship. I don't know what to do. The only thing I can think of to put my mind at ease is to talk this over with him. How should I go about it? He went with a girl for a year. I always wonder about her. She was pretty. I wonder why they broke up. Have I any business knowing? Is there any way I can ask him about her? He never talks about his ex-girlfriends, for that I give him credit.
His mother is making me a skirt for Christmas. I would like to buy her a gift in return. Do you think it's okay? And should I buy presents for his father and brother? What do you suggest? And do you think it only proper for my parents to buy my boyfriend something? — Sincerely Reader
Dear Sincere Reader: Resist jealousy with all the resources of your very being. The next time you feel it surging over you, run to your room, lock the door, lie on the floor and kick, dig your nails into the palms of your two hands, do anything but give way to this devastating force, which corrodes heart and soul. It is a weakness which only the victim can conquer.
Unmasked, jealousy is nothing more than lack of belief in yourself. The best way to combat it is to do some one thing well each day. It may only be typing a letter, or baking a cake. But do it to the best of your ability. That holds as well for personal appearance and living. Look your best. Make the most of every moment. Reach for the stars!
Never, never, by word, look or act, ever let your boyfriend know you are jealous. Suppose he did care for another girl? You're the one now. If you love him, be thankful and say nothing.
The very fact that his mother is making you a skirt for Christmas, shows how he and his family regard you.
Of course you must give them all little presents — a dainty handkerchief or gay scarf for his mother; something pertaining to their hobbies for the men — golf or tennis balls, fishermen's feathered flies, a roll of colored film — whatever is appropriate. They've evidently taken you into their hearts. Take them into yours. Be true to yourself and jealousy will slip into the limbo.

Mayor of Keo Dies in Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Dr. John G. Wilson, mayor of Keo, died at a hospital here yesterday. At 62 he probably was Arkansas' oldest office-holder.
Dr. Wilson had practiced medicine for 32 years. He came to Arkansas in 1919 from Wichita, Kan., and practiced at Elm in Arkansas County for 10 years before settling in Keo.
He was a Methodist.
Survivors include the widow, a daughter, a brother, two grandchildren and a great-grandchild. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.
An understanding mother with a sense of humor. Keep on confiding in her.
Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her care of this newspaper.

New Rocket to Orbit Three Echo Satellites

By JOE F. KANE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Space scientists have announced a successful test of a new "echo" rocket engine and plans to orbit a trio of Echo satellites.

The nation's first rocket engine fueled with liquid hydrogen—the huge XLR115—has been test fired successfully. The Pentagon disclosed Sunday. The engine produced a kick 30 per cent greater than current kerosene-fueled rocket engines.

Plans for launching of the three Echo satellites—the first of them perhaps next March—were announced by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The balloon-like spheres will be as tall as 10-story buildings and will be fired into orbit 1,000 miles above the earth.

Scientists around the world have been invited to try to bounce radio

O O THE HOSTAGE

BY CHARLES HENRY

Copyright 1959 by Charles Henry Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Carol and Bill Cleaves have practically finished packing their things to move to a new house in the country. The moving van has left, and then they discover that Davey is missing. They do not know that Davey, feeling neglected, has crawled into the moving van unseen by anyone excepting Otis Lovelace, a lonely tramp in the park across the street.

Chapter VIII

Smiling up into the flushed face of one other than the flushed Carol Cleaves herself, Miss Mabry was aware of a certain gleam of excitement. In all her years she had developed her own emotional level, and she was quite aware that anyone who was at a high level of vulnerability. In a gesture of surprise she put her hand lightly to her breast. "Oh, my dear," she said, "this is a surprise!"

"I'm looking for Davey, Miss Mabry. Is he here?"

"Davey?" Miss Mabry spread her hands before her in a gesture of surprise. "I must confess to you—I've just been sitting here hoping he would stick to come and pay me a little good visit. But I'm sure he's much too excited today to give me a visit. She paused, looking up in sudden concern. "He hasn't run off, has he?"

Carol's gaze coursed her face with quick appraisal. "No," she said quickly. "Of course not."

Miss Mabry's quiet eyes, however, had seen the slight tightening of Carol's hand. "Davey's such a sensitive little boy, isn't he? He wasn't upset, was he, when he disappeared?"

Carol's lips parted. Then closed.

signals off the big aluminum-encased spheres.

The three satellites to be used in the global communications experiment will be similar to the one launched Oct. 23 about 250 miles above Wallops Island, Va.

Thousands of residents along the coast of the Eastern Seaboard saw that glistening sphere. The Echo satellites to be launched next spring from Cape Canaveral, Fla., will be far larger objects ever rocketed to such heights. They will be 100 feet in diameter but will weigh only 150 pounds.

The plastic spheres will be folded inside containers 28 inches in diameter and will be inflated when they reach their assigned altitude.

NASA hopes to bounce signals off the inflated sphere, using it as a relay for two-way radio communications between the East and West coasts.

"I only had a glimpse of him. He seemed—just ordinary. But, please, about Davey?"

"Oh, my dear! Of course I have a better view here on the second floor. I remembered, at the time I thought there was something—something almost animal about him."

"Miss Mabry—please—You did see Davey down there, didn't you? He was with that man, wasn't he?"

Miss Mabry paused in an attitude of inner conflict. "My dear, let's not leap to conclusions. I'm not at all certain it was actually Davey."

"But it must have been Davey. Tell me—what did he have on? A tan sweater?"

"Well—I do have an impression of something tan—a sweater or jacket. But, dear, remember I didn't say I was absolutely certain, and that doesn't mean—"

"It was Davey!" in Carol's conviction. "I've got to tell Bill!"

As Carol moved anxiously toward the door, Miss Mabry moved with her. "Oh, I'm sure it's just a false alarm."

Carol shook her head with violence. "He isn't anywhere in the building!"

"Now, now, please! We won't give away to alarm."

Pulling free of her restraining hand, Carol crossed rapidly out of the room and into the hall.

As Carol's running footsteps faded swiftly away up the stairs, Miss Mabry allowed a complacent smile to grow on her lips. And then, seeing by the little handpainted china clock on the side table that it was well past time for her mid-morning tea, she closed the door and made her way toward the kitchen.

Wayne (Bull) Bullard brought the truck to a stop and leaned back in the seat to wait for the light to change from red to green. Relaxing his powerful hands on the wheel he looked across at Eddie.

"You see her face when I caught her looking down at me? I seen that look before. She was giving me with her eyes."

Eddie shifted uneasily and she was just looking out to see—"She was looking out to see—" what she saw. Bull glanced ahead at the light; it was still red and he relaxed again. He chuckled softly. "You notice her old man? Square. Just one time with a real man and she'd dump him in the ocean. The kid, too. I know the type. Sure, they look down on you and they try to act distant and all that, but, soon they're just itching to know what you've got. He squirmed his ugly body around suggestively on the seat. "They're just itching."

Chapter IX

Across the intersection the light flashed green, and Bull, letting out the brakes, moved the truck forward again.

Bull turned his head slightly but kept his gaze ahead on the traffic. "Yeah?"

Eddie paused. His pallid face contorted with indecision, but he forced himself to go on.

"Bull," he said in a sudden burst of depression. "Look, Bull—this is crazy! We're out of our heads if we go back to the pad now!"

Bull's face remained blank, his eyes watching the traffic outside. "Yeah?" he said. "Okay. What'll we do?"

"No, Bull, that's just it." Eddie leaned forward, his narrow, feature pinched with eagerness. "Look—been thinking. Maybe we got a day, maybe two. We should take advantage and get out—get away as far as we can."

As Bull looked around, he spoke more rapidly. "Look—we drive our pay and clear out. Bull, that makes sense, don't it?"

"Oh, sure"—Bull nodded—"sure, that makes sense. In a pig's eyes."

"Blinking, Eddie licked his lips again. "Somebody'll find out." His voice fell away to a frightened whisper. "Somebody's sure."

Bull's frown deepened. "Yeah? How's anybody going to find out? If we get the box and get rid of it—"

"I don't know," Eddie said miserably. "Somebody will."

Again the dark gaze raked Eddie's pleading face. "We ain't getting out," he said angrily. "Get that straight. And don't give me no argument. You just got two problems, Edie, you're dumb and you're chicken."

In the tense silence that followed, Eddie moved away, gingerly, seeming to shrink into himself and grow smaller. When finally he spoke again, his tone was tentative, cautious. "I'll go harder with you than no," he said. "That's what I'm thinking about. You're the one that done it."

The brakes hissed again as the truck met another red light and Bull pulled it to a stop. Turning in the seat he gave Eddie a long, pull something?" he said.

Eddie's pale eyes lifted with quick alarm. "What would I pull? Bull, I wasn't even thinking about anything like that. Your trouble, you're too touchy. I'm only saying you ought to listen to what I'm trying to tell you."

For a moment Bull was silent, then he nodded as though having arrived at a decision. "Okay," he said. "You want out? What's holding you?" He nodded ahead toward the street. "That signal up there, three blocks? That's our turn. Okay. Anywhere between here and there you just open the door and jump. Hop out right now if you want. But, son, you get it straight. Once you get yourself out that door you keep moving. And don't you ever run up against me anywhere. You do and I'll rip you good."

As they approached the oncoming signal it held to green. With broad unconcern Bull flipped on the blinkers for a left turn and slowed down. Still Eddie did not move. He seemed almost to have stopped breathing. The approaching traffic stopped to let the truck through and Bull angled

All Is Not Money, Probe Is Asked

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus has been asked to look into operations of the state Apilary Board by the Arkansas Honeypackers Assn., a member of the association says.

The action follows criticism which resulted after a Legislative audit showed that George W. Freeman of Ozark, the board's chief inspector, drew $2,300 expenses for traveling 32,000 miles inspecting beehives.

Bob Sterling of Little Rock, AHA president, has said he would file suit to recover the expenses.

The AHA member, who declined to be identified, said yesterday the group wants Faubus to hold a joint conference with association representatives and the board. He said the governor has not replied to the request.

It into the turn.

As he righted it again into the new direction, Eddie spread his hands before him in a gesture of abject submission. "Okay," he said quietly. "Okay. You just get excited, that's all. I wouldn't chicken on you, Bull."

In the darkness Davey lay face down, his fists clenched tight against his tear-dampened cheeks. He held his breath as the truck struck and passed over some unknown obstruction, communicating the whole of his small, frightened being. How long he had been locked into the van, how far he had been carried through the streets of the city, he had no idea.

Now that the first numbing shock had passed, he had stopped crying and begun to consider his situation more calmly.

His mother and father, when they found out, would be angry. And they would punish him.

Grown-up people, Davey sometimes, very strange sometimes, very perplexing. When something that might have been awful turned out to be all right, they were never able to just accept the good part and forget about the bad.

In the darkness Davey sighed. There was no way to turn back from what he had done, no way to prevent the damage from getting worse, as it certainly was with every passing minute. He would simply have to wait out the journey to the new place and ask the movers to take him to a telephone so he could call home.

The van, still moving forward, began to sway again and from the seaway creaking of the turntable, Davey knew they were turning another corner. He braced himself against the movement and then, as the van righted itself on its new course, he drew away again.

Wondering which part of the city he was in, he hunched forward resting his chin on his knees.

There was nothing to do now but wait.

Transit Strike Really Felt in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The mass transit system was struck here today by 1,700 bus and trolley operators. Hours later mammoth traffic jams developed.

Autos were bumper to bumper as they moved into the downtown business district. In at least two places, cars were backed up three miles. Hitchhikers by the hundreds stood in sub-freezing weather.

The walkout, coming near the peak of the Christmas shopping season, directly affects 115,000 daily commuters.

All equipment was pressed into service by 28 other bus companies continuing to operate in the metropolitan area. The big buses on Pittsburgh's narrow, winding streets helped contribute to the traffic jams.

Railroads, not used to hauling many commuters, did a land office business.

Today's strike, the climax of a contract dispute, was the third in six years by Division 85 Amalgamated Assn. of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees. The union struck for 56 days in 1957 and 35 days in 1954.

Trolley and bus operators were paid $2.49 an hour, under a two-year contract that expired Monday night. Mayor Joseph Barr and mediators worked out a last-minute proposal which was unanimously rejected by the union.

Barr's plan called for a three-year contract, providing a basic 13-cent hourly increase, plus a provisional additional 3 cents an hour boost under a cost of living clause.

"We want to find out whether Kaufman said. He noted that Scheuing is the only pharmaceu-cal house which has failed to turn over its foreign agreements involving, among other things,

Brown replied that he has no objection to handing over the agreements, but said his firm has not yet obtained permission from the foreign firms involved to dis-

Brown repeatedly contended the subcommittee was receiving misleading figures from its staff about price markups. He argued that John Blair and other sub-overlooking the company's costs

Hurricane Winds Lash in Europe

By DENNIS NEEDL

LONDON (AP) — Pierce winter storm lashed Europe and the Atlantic for the third day today.
Mountains seas, blizzards, floods and freezing temperatures took 72 lives.

The latest victims were the eight scamen of a lifeboat crew smashed on Scotland's east coast.
The lifeboat had set off to rescue the crew of a drifting lightship and was driven ashore.

The lightship later radioed that it had been able to stop the drift and was riding out the storm in St. Andrews Bay.

Heavy rains and high winds battered most of the British Isles.
Snowstorms and cold again disrupted transport on most of the continent. Battle ports in Poland were closed. Hundreds of cars were snowbound in Denmark.

Rain and snow continued in most of Italy, heavily damaging fruit crops.

The situation eased at Fregus on the French Riviera where more than 200 persons lost their lives in a dam break last week. Buses and two cargo ships had been ordered to stand by to remove persons in case of renewed floods.

In the Atlantic, mountainous waves up to 80 feet high buffeted great liners, putting them as much as 2 hours behind schedule.

The captain of a French navy weather frigate reported from far out in the Atlantic: "I have just heard from an American ship.
Her captain thinks the storm has put 500 ships in difficulties."

British Coast Guardsmen answered distress signals from the 3,000-ton Swedish freighter Anna, driven ashore on the rocky east coast of Scotland. A line was rocketed to her deck, and rescue teams prepared to hoist the crew to the overhanging cliffs.

Only a few miles away the 217-ton British trawler George Robb had heeled over on the rocks earlier Monday. All her crew of 22 men were lost and a Coast
Guardman collapsed and died during the search for survivors.

Scandinavia caught the full force of the storm. The Baltic was swamp almost clean of shipping.
Heavy snowfalls were reported from northern Italy, Austria and Switzerland.

Urges Third Party in Steel Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell today urged steel labor and management to submit their long dispute to some third party, possibly the government, for solution.

Mitchell told a news conference
the time has come for the industry and the United Steelworkers Union to consider seriously seeking recommendations from a fact-finding group or from the government itself.

He recommended that both sides voluntarily agree to let either a fact-finding board or the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service make recommendations for a settlement.

A third method, he said, would be for the parties to agree to submit their dispute to binding arbitration, or the decision of an outsider.

All three suggestions, Mitchell said, seem to him to fall within the views of President Eisenhower. The President said in a nationwide address before leaving the country last Thursday night that the public is more concerned now with getting the steel dispute settled than with the method by which that is accomplished.

Mitchell's proposal came as the union sought to complete a new agreement for 25,000 members in the can manufacturing industry and use it to help jar loose a steel settlement.

14.7 Million Bales Cotton Estimated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's final report of the year today put the 1959 cotton crop at 14,701,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight.

This is 100,000 bales less than the 14,801,000 bales estimated a month ago. It compares with last year's small crop of 11,514,000 bales and with the 10-year (1943-57) average of 14,046,000 bales.

This year's crop is supplemented by a reserve and carryover supply of 8,900,000 bales from previous crops. Much of this is stored under government farm price support programs.

The crop was grown under a somewhat relaxed government production control program which permits a lower price aimed at attracting new markets.

Growers will vote Dec. 15 on continuance of this program in 1960.

The department reported that 15,803,000 acres were planted to this year's crop compared with 12,379,000 last year and 22,444,000

for the 10-year average.

The harvested acreage was put at 13,164,000 acres compared with 11,349,000 last year and 21,676,000
for the 10-year average.

The yield per harvested acre was reported at 466 pounds compared with 466 last year and 329
for the 10-year average.

In an accompanying report, the Census Bureau said 13,402,371 running bales from this year's crop had been ginned prior to Dec. 1.
This compared with 16,211,639 ginned to the same date last year.

The production of cottonseed was indicated at about 6,100,000 tons compared with 4,733,000 last year.

Columbia Protests Transfer of Agent

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (AP) — Miss
Anne Gilbert, Columbia County home demonstration agent, is to be transferred over the objections of many residents.

Protests have been sent to government officials, including Gov.
Orval E. Faubus and Rep. Owen
Harris (D-Ark.), about the proposal to move Miss Gilbert from the post she has held for 12 years.

C. A. Vines, director of the Agricultural Extension Service, said yesterday the shift was not unusual.

"We felt we ought to transfer her," Vines said, adding there had been little criticism of her work. "We just feel that some people can do better jobs in different situations."

A protest meeting was held by 100 county residents, mostly women, who presented a petition signed by 900 persons objecting to the transfer.

Miss Gilbert declined comment
except to say:

"The only reason I'm leaving is because I'm asked to."
Vines said Miss Gilbert's new post had not been selected.

4 Hope Teams See Action, Only One Win

Four Hope basketball teams saw action Tuesday afternoon and night with the Senior girls emerging with the only victory.

At Jones Field House Coach Bensley's Lady Cats racked up their second straight win of the season by downing the Saratoga Seniors 39 to 37. The game was close and fast throughout with never more than three points separating the teams.

In the high school Junior Varsity Bobcats dropped a one sided tangle to the Saratoga senior boys by a score of 42-29. Saratoga led by a point at the half, 13-12, but pulled away in the final quarters.

Tuesday afternoon the Junior High 7th and 8th grade team along with the Junior Bobcats journeyed to Texarkana where they dropped a double header to the Jefferson Avenue basketballers.

The 7th and 8th grade opener the Hope lads came out on the short end by a decisive 25 to 9 score in a one sided contest.

Coach Billy Mitchell's Juniors dropped a 35 to 23 decision to the strong Jefferson Avenue five after trailing at the half 12 to 11.

The Senior girls game was a thriller throughout. Saratoga led 17 to 15 at the half. By the end of the third quarter the Lady Cats had pulled in front to take a two point lead 29 to 27, and successfully stalling and protected a slim three point lead for the final two minutes to emerge 39 to 37 winners.

Ira Nell England was the big gun for the Hope sextet scoring 28 points. Mitchell followed with 6 and Messer 5 to complete the Hope scoring column. Sue Porter scored 21 with Myra McLarey racking up 12 and W. Parsons 4 for Saratoga.

In the Junior Varsity boys game Jeffery Powell Bobcat forward led the scorers with 11 points followed by Bill McWilliams of Saratoga with 10 for the winners.

In addition to Powell's 10 for Hope McLarey racked up 3, Horner 4, Roberts 6, Green 3 and Compton 1.

In the Junior boys game played at Texarkana, Porterfield led Hope scorers with 11 points, followed by Murphy with 8 and Dan Jones with 5. Tony Purdie 1.

capital of Afghanistan. Eisenhower apologized for the delay, saying, "I couldn't help it."

Nehru said Eisenhower's visit to India at this time is particularly important because it could well be the turning point for progress in the striving for world peace.

"We welcome you. We are grateful to your country," Nehru said.

"We are full of gratitude for what you are doing now to help us win our place. I can say that this friendship has been firmly established in this country. You are an instrument for making it stronger, durable, more lasting."

Eisenhower summed up in these words the purpose of his Indian visit.

"To symbolize, if I can, the fact that the United States stands with the leaders of India in a common quest for peace."

"Let us all pray that something, even this little step, may have some useful purpose in furthering that great hope."

The flight from Kabul, Afghanistan—across the Hindu Kush Mountains and the historic Khyber Pass—took an hour and 34 minutes.

Revision of Executive Dept. Likely

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower reportedly is mulling over two ideas for modernizing the top-level executive organization of the government.

They are:

Creation of a first secretary of the government, a sort of super-secretary, who would outrank Cabinet members and the vice president and who would take over much foreign policy detail now handled personally by a president.

A "business manager" who would rank at Cabinet level and who would coordinate many domestic programs now involving a number of agencies and departments.

The President has been thinking along these lines for several years, White House associates say, but his ideas are still rather vague, not yet in a concrete form for submission to Congress.

Eisenhower has spoken publicly of his thoughts from time to time. He has made it clear that any reorganization of the executive would be one of his final acts, so that no one would think he was trying to benefit himself. If such proposals are actually presented, it is probably would be done some time next year.

The supersupersecretary idea got a cold reception in Capitol Hill. Republican Senate Leader Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) said he thought it was a "very bad idea."

Dirksen has not discussed the idea with congressional leaders and chances are it will not be taken up. He said that any proposal to change the executive organization would be a long and difficult one, and that he would not want to take on the job of writing it.

Broyles Thinks Porkers Are in Good Shape

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Coach Frank Broyles says his Arkansas Razorbacks are in pretty good shape for their Gator Bowl preparations.

The Porkers worked out for about 90 minutes yesterday in ideal weather. They reviewed grid plays and looked at part of the Georgia Tech offense.

Arkansas and Tech clash in the bowl game at Jacksonville, Fla., on Jan. 2.

"They lost some wind in the two-week layoff since the Texas Tech game," Broyles said. "But they're still in pretty good shape."

The only Razorback out of action is halfback Jarrell Williams, who underwent surgery on his knee after the Texas Tech game and will not be able to play in the Gator Bowl.

The Hogs have not had any hard contact work. That won't start until they get back in harness after the short rest period following the regular season.

Yerger Cage Teams Split Two Games

The Yerger High School Tigers broke even with Washington last night in a pair of basketball games, the senior boys winning 42-20 while the girls were losing 19 to 11.

Yerger led 20-6 at the half the high point men for Yerger were Douglas Williamson with 14 and Edwards and Cox with 8 each.

Coley scored 8 for Washington. Gracie Harris scored 6 points in a losing cause for the Yerger girls.

Guatemala Defeated Red Domination

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

Guatemala is a Central American republic with a distinction that makes it unique in the world.

It is the one country that once under Communist domination was able to throw it off and return to a Democratic regime.

But the Communists and their fellow travelers have not given up, and Sunday's election results demonstrate that once again they are in a position to threaten.

This was an off-year election, in that President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes' office was not at stake. It was to elect 23 members of the 68-member single-house, with President Ydigoras admitting in advance that he feared a leftist gain.

This was another Latin American election in which the United States was a campaign issue and which had to be viewed by the United States with frank interest.

Overthrew Red President

Guatemala emerged from Communist domination on June 27, 1954, when Carlos Castillo Armas, the head of a rag-tag force, succeeded in ousting President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman.

Arbenz fled to the shelter of the Iron Curtain, and the United States began the process of firming up the Castillo Armas regime with loans and various forms of aid which now run around the 100 million dollar mark.

With this aid, Guatemala was able to survive a severe drop in the price of coffee, its main export, and to maintain a respectable foreign exchange reserve.

In July 1957 however, one of Castillo Armas' own guards assassinated him in the presidential palace. The Guatemalan government said the assassin carried papers proving he had Communist affiliations.

Ydigoras Takes Over

After a considerable political scramble, Ydigoras, an army general took over.

Ydigoras, in contrast to the popular and strong-willed Castillo Armas, is no strongman.

Rightist groups in Congress are divided, and Ydigoras' fight with Mexico over fishing rights and claims to sovereignty over British Honduras have not succeeded in uniting behind him the public support Ydigoras had hoped for.

Even an election-year government change that forces were being trained in Cuba to invade Guatemala failed to stir the voters.

Meanwhile, Communist and pro-Communists have pulled back into the country and are becoming increasingly vocal politically, with the United States their chief target.

Charges of Waste

There have been charges of waste against U.S.-aided anti-communist programs and of high salaries to "gingers." The aid programs themselves have been attacked as interference in Guatemala's internal affairs.

Thus, even though the administration of the aid program has been recognized as one of the United States' better efforts.

The aid not only bolstered Guatemala's economy but also helped to bring about the end of the civil war.

Oklahoma Wet, Bootlegging Is Suffering

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The end of prohibition in Oklahoma has wiped out a historic "industry" the practice of bootlegging.

bootch from Missouri to the dry Sooner State across hilly north-west Arkansas.

The Arkansas Alcoholic Beverage Control Board already is feeling the effects of legal liquor sales in Oklahoma.

"We haven't seized a single load of illegal liquor since last May," said agent Frank Bass. "That compares with 19,000 worth of 1954-55 fiscal year."

Package stores opened for business in Oklahoma Sept. 1 after Oklahoma voters last April 7 to end prohibition.

Bass said the control board figures the shipments across Arkansas ended in May because the bootleggers already had an ample supply to last them until the stores opened.

Most loads of illegal liquor in the past were taken in Washington and Benton counties. The bootleggers didn't say, but the ABC is sure the cargoes were bound for Oklahoma.

"We still get tips that whisky is being loaded in Missouri," Bass said, "but our agents haven't been able to find a thing in Arkansas. It's probably going north."

Bass said the lack of fair trade laws in Oklahoma reduced the price of whisky about $1 a fifth under Arkansas prices. But so far there has been no indication of Oklahoma's cheaper whisky being shipped into Arkansas.

While the traffic in commercial liquor has stopped, moonshining continues, a usual Arkansas show in the 1954-55 fiscal year and 1,329 gallons in 1953-54.
